

Internet and E-Commerce Law

Protecting your brand identity and online business interests.

In today's business environment, it is important, and often essential, to have an Internet presence. Whether your business is based on e-commerce or you simply use the Internet for marketing and promotion, you need to protect your brand identity and interests.

Our IP Practice Group represents businesses and individuals with Internet law issues throughout the United States. We handle legal issues relating to e-commerce and establishing or operating a web business. Our firm is dedicated to protecting and promoting the business and intellectual property interests of our clients. We also represent clients in litigation arising out of Internet-related issues.

As Internet use, laws and regulations change, we stay current on legal issues.

Our attorneys are experienced in dealing with Internet and e-commerce issues. We can advise you on the laws and regulations that govern the web, e-commerce transactions, web advertising and security and privacy matters.

We handle a wide range of Internet law matters, including:

- Domain name disputes
- Cybersquatting
- Privacy policies and procedures
- Internet advertising and marketing
- Spam and commercial e-mail issues
- Trademark and other intellectual property matters
- Contract and licensing disputes
- Website development and design issues

Our goal is to resolve disputes efficiently and successfully.

Greenspoon Marder offers effective, knowledgeable representation in litigation and other disputes arising out of Internet-based commerce. We serve individuals and companies throughout the United States. If you have concerns about e-commerce law, Internet law or how to protect and promote your business, contact us for an appointment.

Related Areas

- Intellectual Property
- Intellectual Property Litigation

Meet the Team

- Sharon Urias