Mitch Adler is of counsel in the Litigation practice group at Greenspoon Marder LLP. He has more than 25 years of litigation experience trying cases throughout the state of Florida and representing clients in appeals. In addition to general complex litigation matters, Mr. Adler's litigation practice focuses on business disputes, real estate litigation and probate/trust litigation. He also handles creditors' rights litigation and has represented clients in business, corporate and partnership matters; commercial litigation; employment litigation; and construction disputes. He has extensive experience in real estate litigation including complex foreclosures, lender liability claims, quiet title and partition matters, and easement/property disputes. He also has substantial experience in probate and trust litigation, including will contests.
