Patrick J. Hennessey is an associate in Greenspoon Marder's Litigation practice group and is based in the firm's Orlando office, where he concentrates his practice in the areas of Regulatory Compliance and Complex Commercial Litigation.

While attending law school, Mr. Hennessey worked at Greenspoon Marder as a summer associate and law clerk, conducting research for the firm's Labor & Employment, Banking & Finance Litigation, and Business Litigation practice groups.

Prior to working at Greenspoon Marder, Mr. Hennessey served as a summer intern for Congressman Richard E. Neal of Massachusetts. During which time, he provided educational tours of the congressional office building and U.S. Capitol building. In addition, he assisted on various research projects for the Congressional Ways and Means Committees, attended Congressional hearings and media briefings, and tended to constituents calls.
